Bookmakers, Locking for "Soft Money." Still Anxious to Pay Tribute in Some Way-Matter Will Be Settled Soon Stake Events for Week-Entries.

The attendance at Gravesend on Saturday. while of large proportions, was a disappoint-ment to the Brooklyn Jockey Club. Barring the Saturdays, Decoration Day and Brooklyn Bandicap day, the average daily attendance at this racetrack, as far as the grand stand $3 enclosure is concerned, has been so small that P. J. Dwyer has openly criticized the raising of the tariff caused by the severing of financial relations with the bookmakers. As THE SUN stated last week, the track owners will hold an important meeting in a day or two, at which this matter will be considered at length. It may be said that if the question comes to a store the Gravesend. Jamaica and Aqueduct tracks will stand together, with the other tracks prone to give e case plenty of consideration.

It is a delicate question to handle, yet the wack owners feel that under the present high scale of prices the public interest will fall off in the course of time, which means everything. It is an accepted fact now that if the gate rates had remained as they were the receipts in gross would have greatly exceeded the figures over which the Brooklyn Jockey Club officials are pondering at present. That the $1 field has been the magnet for more than 60 per cent, of the attendance each day cannot be contradicted. There are hundreds of persons who were formerly regular patrons of the big ring at $2 a head who have gone to the field for $1 rather than give up $3. On Saturday, for instance, there were 14,000 persons who paid $1 to see the races from the cramped field enclosure, the races from the cramped near enclosure, and perhaps 6,000 men who gave up $3 to go into the grand stand reservation. Under the old scale of prices these figures would probably have been reversed, which would have meant an increased amount taken at the probably the probably have been reversed, which would have meant an increased amount taken at the probably the probably have been reversed. the gates. But on ordinary days, when there are 8,000 people in the field and 1,500 in the grand stand, the test of the new arrangement makes the desire to go back to old principles particularly strong.

It may be said that the track owners have two schemes in mind, either of which will bring about a desired change. One is to accept some sort of a contribution from the bookmakers as a body under new arrange-ment, to be coupled with the return to the old prices of admission, and the other is the fixing of the admission to all parts of the track, barring the clubhouse and paddock, The latter plan would do away with the field altogether. It would make a man pay just as much to see the races from the field as from the grand stand, but the small betters would be able to patronize the field makers if they were permitted to operate der such a new shift in the cards.

The cry from the bookmakers, ever since the prices were raised and the track owners stopped taking fees from the chalkers for we are saying nounce, and seed book the old business, no matter how the contribution is arranged. If it is legal to make bets with the public on the results of horse races without plying for the privilege why isn't it legal to operate after a man has paid $100 for ten tickets of admission to the track and betting ring which are to be used by himself and his employees, including cashler, sheet writer, runners, clockers and betting reaches.

Club who are unalterably opposed to any plan that will ever recognize the bookmakers in any way hereafter, and these are the men who believe that if the $3 tarff is no longer feasible the entire racetrack should be open to the public at $2 a head.

Among sporting men yesterday the defeat of Olseau and the victory of Rurgomaster on Saturday provided a live topic. It turns out that Diamond Jim Brady made one of the although he evered up the fact by having Jesse Lwisohn's commissioners place the money for him. Brady lost all of $15,000 on Olseau, $2,500 of which was bet with the books in his own name. The story of George Kessler's ciean up with Borzomaster was verified. He won just $18,000 on the Whithey cold, tetting an average of 15 to 1 for his money, which was placed by Skater Reynolds, the latter receiving a present of $350 or ready for such a hard acceptable of the stewards of the Jockey Club, it is said on good authority that the boy will not be permitted to ride here again, at least for the stewards of the Jockey Club, it is said on good authority that the boy will not be permitted to ride here again, at least for the rest of the stewards of the Jockey Club, it is said on good authority that the boy will not be permitted to ride here again, at least for the rest of the season. Meanwhile it is probable that of the season when here.

Kehallan, Outcome and Workman are in light, and if some of the stars are withdrawn they may prove dangerous. Beldame has been coming along well in her work, and if nothing goes amiss with her she will start in the Suburban.

The Bedford Stakes, for two-year-olds, five furlongs, is another magnet, Mintia and Guiding Star being in some favor. The first race is a sprint for platers at about six furlongs, and looks a puzzle with such starters as Czaraphine, Broadcloth, Tommy Waddell, Atwood, Bellatrix and Jerry C. The handicap steeplechase has some good jumpers, including Sandhurst, Gold Van, Coligny, Bonfire and Imperialist. In the fifth race, for platers, at a mile and a sixteenth, Canteen, Jane Holly, Carrie Jones and Consuelo II may be factors. Oaklawn, one of the best two-year-old coits of the season, is entered in the last race, in which he has Confederate, St. Estephe, Yankee Consul, Gold Sifter, Gold Badge, Albert I, Astronomer and others to beat. Oaklawn has enjoyed a long rest, and will go to the post with heavy support in the betting ring. The entries are as follows:

Chase Improving Steadily-Devlin the Best Base Stealer of National League Team -Batch First Among the Brooklyns -Records of the Different Players.

Willie Keeler came back out of the West with his companions of the American League team with the lead in batting still tightly attached to him. Keeler has played in every game since the season started. He has a total of .336 for thirty-nine games. Bresnahan of the Nationals, has a percentage of .345 for thirty-three games. Chase is still improving with the stick. He advanced nine points in batting and five in fielding last week. Williams jumped up 23 points, going to third place, and Fultz improved 19 notches, erty fell off slightly and Conroy passed him. McGuire got into the .200 class.

The Nationals are on their travels now but Strang and McGinnity have gained several points. With the hit that Elliott got in Boston, not one of the Champions now remains who has a zero in the hit column. All save three of the squad are batting over .225. Devlin's record of sixteen stolen bases Heredity does not seem to cut much lee in begetting ball players. The diamond has no noted sons of noted sires.

"Some of the spitballs thrown past you are so damp," observes, Bill Dahlen, "that you get rheumatism swinging at them."

Batch did some good hitting against the New York pitchers in the last New York-Brooklyn series. He picked up six bingles.

Bill Dahlen's fielding has not been quite as good lately as it was earlier in the season, but his hitting has been better. Take him either way, he is a pretty valuable person to have around.

KNOLLWOOD'S PLACE IN GOLF.

TURE OF THE WEEK.

Bustling Times Ahead to the Amateur Championship-Women to Play at Knollwood Country Club, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and there will be a fine muster of the players, who will let no chance slip by for a hot match between now and the summons to go westward for the amateur championship. Knollwood is the garden links, with turf that is ideal, bordered off the line of play by flower beds and orna-mental shrubbery, and the 4,620 yards of playing distance puts a premium on accuracy and the short game. The change is a novelty always appreciated in these days of mighty distances and the club stands alone in its refusal to mar what is good to suit the whims of the "aluggers." Walter J. Travis established the amateur record of 67 in winning the Knollwood tournament two years ago, which was two strokes below the record of Robert Dow, the club's professional. The latter sends word that on Friday, in a match with two of the Knollwood members, he equalled Travis's record of 67. Dow's card may be started promptly at 2 P. M.

There are now but three blank weeks in the M. G. A. tournament schedule between Knollwood and the amateur championship, to begin Aug. 7 at Wheaton. The blank weeks are those beginning June 26, July 17 and July 31, but the latter week is not desirable if a large field is wanted, on account of the proximity of the amateur championship. The days on which the tournaments begin and their order are: Westbrook, June 14; Englewood, June 21; Hudson River Association, at Kingston, June 22; Apawamis, July 6; Connecticut Association, at New Haven, July 12, and Shinnecock Hills, July 27. The Seabright Golf Club, which formerly held a tournament in the first week of July, voted last season to rejoin the circuit, but thus far no applications have been made to Secretary Calkins for dates.

Neither Will Anderson, the holder, nor Aleck Smith, the former titleholder, will be back from Scotland in time to compete in the open championship of the Western Golf Association this time, which should make it an unusually good opportunity for the youngsters and new men. It will be held for the first time at the Cincinnati Golf Club, June 29 and 30. Seventy-two holes of medal play will be decided, for five prizes and the medal. The prizes will be of $150, $100, $75, $50 and $25. There is also a special of $50 for the lowest eighteen holes. The tournament committee is Alan L. Reid, chairman: R. H. McElwee, J. J. terday at the Nassau boat house and decided that the quarter mile race rowed in the Memorial Day regatta was no race and Rowing Club, with F. Vesely, Bohemian B. C., second, and after the regatta had concluded Titus, who was third, protested the event on the ground that it was more than 440 yards—the stipulated distance on the program. Fuessel stated that he would not gram. Fuessel stated that he would not row the race over, but would meet Titus any time in a special quarter mile match for a prize or any value from 10 cents to $500.

A reporter of The Sun questioned some members of the regatta committee as to the exact distance of the race, but nobody knew, and it leaked out that the course was never surveyed at all, only a guess being made at a quarter mile "from the end of the Speedway to the rocks." In fact all the other races may have been more than a mile and a quarter, for that course was not surveyed either, and a bunch of protests are liable to be forthcoming from those crews defeated. On account of Sherman Creek it is not possible to survey the mile and a quarter correctly until the river is frozen over, so that a ticklish problem presents itself to the Harlem Regatta committee. The only thing they go by in the quarter mile races is the time, and this is a poor guide from the way some of the races were timed on Memorial Day. In the junior eight cared races the official timers made a mistake of a minute and they tried to rectify it afterward, saying that they read their watches wrong. Fuessel said yesterday that he would protest the senior mile and a quarter race on the ground that only one judge officiated at the finish, when the rules call for three. Titus defeated him by a few feet, but Fuessel is of the opinion that he won, and it appears was told so by several individuals at the finish line.

James Pilkington, president of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, who acted as starter on Memorial Day, said regarding the quarter mile case last night: The action of the regatta committee has no precedent in the history of amateur rowing, and I am surprised at such a decision. They selected the course, I started the scullers and the judges at the finish agreed on the winner, and everything was according to the rules of competition. Even before leaving for his home in Baltimore, the referree did not say no race to the quarter mile dash, yet the regatta committee b row the race over, but would meet Titus any time in a special quarter mile match for a

Last Friday, in the team match at Richmond Country, Mrs. Paterson beat Mrs. Stout, which complicates matters in the search for the winner in advance. Thirty men are in the Columbia squad, including the first varsity eight and six substitutes, the freshman eight and four substitutes and the varsity four. A second varsity eight will be made up of the substitutes the treatment of the substitutes and the second the stream of the substitutes and the second th varsity eight will be made up of the substi-tutes of the two eights and the extra two men will work in a pair oar. Coach Goodwin, Manager Walter E. F. Bradley and Assistant Manager Perry D. Bogue accompany the men. Manager Perry D. Bogue accompany the men. The quarters for the Columbia oarsmen are at Red Top, the old place that Harvard used to have at Highlands, and is four miles above the railroad station. The secluded location is excellent for strict training and privacy. The men will take along the two eightoared boats that are to be used in the race. The Van Am, the shell given by the football association to the crew, is for the university eight, while a new shell given by Kingdon Gould, '0s science, is for the use of his classmates in their race. Another eight, two fours and a couple of pair oared shells are included in the outfit.

The men will arrive at Poughkeepsie this afternoon, but it is expected that little will be done all day except unpacking the boats and getting the quarters to rights. The men will grout to-morrow for their first work, probably, after the shells have been rigged and other matters straightened out.
